Milosz Days in Edmonton

The Polish Culture Society of Edmonton in conjunction with The University of Alberta will be organizing Milosz Days in Edmonton from 14 to 16 September 1981. The event will provide the opportunity to introduce to both the University community and public at large one of the most outstanding contemporary Polish writers and intellectuals, winner of the Nobel Prize for literature in 1980.

Czeslaw Milosz was born in 1911 in what is now Soviet Lithuania and started his literary career in Vilnius (former Wilno), an important multicultural centre composed of various national groups: Poles, Lithuanians, Belorussians, Jews, and Russians. This exposure to this kind of diversity left an indelible trace on Milosz's literary output and formed him as a writer. Milosz's writing includes poetry, prose and literary-philosophical essays. His first work, Poem on Time Frozen, appeared in 1933. Milosz spent the war years in occupied Warsaw where he participated in the Polish underground resistance movement. After the war he worked for some time as a cultural attaché in the Polish embassy in Washington, D.C. and in Paris. In 1951 he broke with the communist regime and settled in France. In 1953, he published The Captive Mind, a shattering account of how intellectuals in eastern Europe are spiritually and morally subjugated to the demands of political dictatorship. In 1960, Milosz was offered a Professorship in Slavic Literatures at the University of California at Berkeley where he has lived ever since.

During the years in exile,

Milosz continued his creative writing by publishing in the Polish emigré monthly Kultura in Paris. Collections of his articles, poems, and two novels were also printed in Paris.

Milosz Days in Edmonton are intended to show the scope and depth of the writer's interests, his achievements as an artist and thinker. The program of the Days includes presentation of papers about Milosz by Bogdan Czaykowski from the University of British Columbia, Madelene Levin from University of North Carolina and Edward Mozejko of this University's Department of Comparative Literature. There will also be an exhibition and sale of Milosz's books. The highlight of the program will be a poetry reading in both Polish and English translations by Milosz himself who will arrive in Edmonton on 14 September.

The detailed program of Milosz Days in Edmonton has been published by the Polish Culture Society of Edmonton and will appear in next week's issue of Folio. For more information, telephone 432-3537. The public is cordially invited to participate in this event. □

New Department: Slavic and East European Studies

On 7 August 1981, the amalgamation of the Department of Slavic Languages and the Division of East European Studies was approved by the Board of Governors, thereby creating a Department of Slavic and East European Studies. A primary consideration behind the amalgamation was provided by the opportunity to increase scholarly activity through paring administrative and non-academic costs. The new Department will be housed in the Faculty of Arts under whose jurisdiction the courses of both of the units had traditionally fallen. It is envisaged that the courses and programs of the former units, (philological in the case of Slavic Languages, interdisciplinary with a strong orientation toward the social sciences in the case of the Division of East European Studies) will remain essentially intact, although increased interaction between the two areas will be pursued. □

Anweiler Visits University

The Department of Slavic and East European Studies in conjunction with the Department of Educational Foundations has invited Oskar Anweiler, Chairman, Institut für Pädagogik, Ruhr University at Bochum, to present a series of lectures and seminars during the month of September. His visit comes under the auspices of the Visiting Scholars Program.

Dr. Anweiler is internationally known for his work in the field of comparative education with a special emphasis on the Soviet Union and the Eastern-Bloc countries. His research in the history of educational systems of eastern Europe is closely combined with work in East European studies generally, including history, literature and philosophy. As President of the International Committee for Soviet and East European Studies, he has been particularly successful in expanding his activities beyond university walls. He was chairman of the committee responsible for organizing the Second World Congress for Soviet and East European Studies which was held at Garmisch in September-October 1980. Among other offices Dr. Anweiler holds the Vice-Presidency of the German Society for East European Studies and is co-editor of the journal Bildung und Erziehung as well as the series Erziehungswissenschaftliche Veröffentlichungen des Osteuropa-Instituts an der Freien Universität Berlin.

Dr. Anweiler's publication record includes a great number of articles and the editing of authorship of eleven books. His study of workers' councils (soviets) which appeared in 1958 under the title Die Rätebewegung in Russland, 1905-1921, (translation—English 1974) has now become a classic and established Dr. Anweiler's name as an historian of the Russian revolutionary period. Die sowjetische Bildungspolitik, 1917-1960: Dokumente und Texte, co-authored with K. Meyer, and later expanded to cover the period to 1973, has now gone through two editions. Erziehungs- und Sozialisationsprobleme in der Sowjetunion, der DDR, und Polen, a collection of conference papers, appeared in 1978 and illustrates Dr. Anweiler's interest in the comparative approach to problems of education as these relate to the progress of socialization in communist countries.

Among Dr. Anweiler's current research projects are reports on educational policies in the GDR, the Soviet Union, Eastern Europe and China, as well as a comparative study on technical and vocational orientation in France and the Soviet Union.

While at the University, Dr. Anweiler will lecture and conduct seminars on the following topics: "Political education in the Soviet Union and in the German Democratic Republic: Some aspects of comparative analysis"; "Russification by education? Facts and problems in research on Soviet nationalities questions"; "Trends and problems in Soviet education in the early 1980s"; "The failure of an educational reform—the case of Poland (1973-1981)"; "One decade of educational reform in the Federal Republic of Germany (1970-1980)"; and "The challenge of multiculturalism to the West German educational system." All interested parties are cordially invited to attend these presentations whose scheduling will appear in subsequent issues of Folio. □

The Himalayas aside, things are looking up in Nepal. Before distance and dissimilarities of culture and economy cause the reader to say "Hmmm, that's nice but where's the University news?" let it be recorded that the University had a large hand in engineering the sunny outlook. L.P. Apedaile, Professor of Rural Economy, was on leave to Nepal from February 1978 to August 1980 during which time he helped to formulate plans for integrated rural development in nine districts of the 54,000 square mile country. On 21 July 1981, an agreement was signed in Katmandu, the capital of Nepal, whereby Canada and Nepal will spend $15.6 million over the next three years to improve the lot of the rural Nepalese.

To underscore the word rural, consider that 76.5 percent of the total area of Nepal is composed of hills and mountains and that about 65 percent of the population of some 13.6 million live in the hills and mountains.

The gist of the agreement is that Canada, whose share of the tab is $12.5 million, has contracted with the Government of Nepal to implement programs in transportation, irrigation, soil conservation, the raising of crops and livestock, etc. Dr. Apedaile pointed out that it is one of the few Canadian aid programs that has turned total responsibility over to the aid recipient. In most cases, a Canadian or Canadian contingent is dispatched to whatever country to run the show; under the agreement with Nepal, the Canadian (a team of five is being put together) will be assistants to Ishwar Prasad Shrestha, Coordinator of the Karnali-Bheri Integrated Rural Development Program.

Mr. Shrestha was in Edmonton recently to meet with representatives of the Department of Federal and Intergovernmental Affairs and Alberta Agriculture prior to journeying to Ottawa to hold discussions with the President of the Canadian International Development Agency. Visits to Mexico and Colombia were also on his itinerary before returning home armed with an abundance of budgetary information and keyed to begin his labor of love. While in Edmonton, he said that improvements to the transportation system would be the first order of business. The topography militates against the building of roads but the centuries old mule tracks can be upgraded to carry all terrain vehicles. The old ways still hold sway—virtually everything is transported on peoples' backs and distance is measured in the number of days required to travel from one place to another.

Maps are being prepared because the only ones available were made in the 1940s courtesy of an Indian topographical survey. Nepal was closed to the outside world until 1951 and even then had little involvement with other nations until 1965. Rural development, while not exactly new, is looked on with great excitement; the new program aims to increase the productivity of the local economy, benefit the rural poor, increase employment opportunities, and enhance the availability and level of social services.

The program also constitutes an attempt to erode the paternalism aspect inherent in previous programs, Dr. Apedaile said. Responsibility will rest with the people themselves and Dr. Apedaile, having found the Nepalese "dynamic to work with," likes their chances for success. Dynamic also were personnel in the University's Purchasing Department. They overcame a number of logistical and temporal (monsoon season) challenges to greatly assist Dr. Apedaile in realizing his role in the project. He has resumed teaching and research activities knowing that he has been heard from internationally. So too has the University and, all things being equal, its voice will be projected abroad many more times. □

SummerFest Wants University People

According to a newsletter recently received from the organizers of SummerFest, "founders" or charter members are required to help put the summer-long arts festival on a secure road to a glowing future.

SummerFest—or rather, the idea for the festival—grew out of the cultural arts activities that were associated with the XI Commonwealth Games in 1978 and the similar festival which celebrated our Province's first seventy-five years. In the summer just passed, there was a wide variety of entertainments appealing to a range of tastes in the performing arts. Free lunch time and evening shows were offered with great success.

SummerFest, according to its publicity agents, is a "bright, fresh and first class idea." "Edmontonians who want to live in a city centred on the needs and lives of its people can appreciate the role music, dance, theatre and the visual arts play in meeting this goal."

To become a "founder," readers of Folio may telephone 438-4848 or pick up membership details at Mike's or any BASS outlet. The cut-off date is 30 September 1981. □

BA (Special) in Criminology Established

A new program developed by the Department of Sociology will solidify its position of influence in Canadian criminology and will help to meet the expanding manpower needs of the country's criminal justice system agencies.

The BA (Special) in Criminology is a four year multidisciplinary program with a number of unique features. It involves the coordination of several disciplines for the purpose of providing a more thorough analysis and understanding of the causes of criminal behavior and societal reactions to such conduct. It is administered by the Department of Sociology together with department representatives from Psychology, Political Science, Philosophy and Economics who serve on the Program's Multi-Disciplinary Committee.

Three half-year courses involving field placement with area criminal justice agencies gives the program both an academic and applied component. The placements will provide supervised work experience in a variety of relevant settings such as parole and probation offices, private after-care agencies and correctional institutions. In addition, the placements will contribute to the academic growth of students by stressing practical application of criminological theory and the integration of academic knowledge with the practical experience acquired in the field placement setting. Students' performance in these placements will be rigorously evaluated.

The program commences January 1982 with an approved quota of forty-five students and an initial admission of up to fifteen students into the second and third years. These students will be required to complete all program requirements which may involve additional course work beyond that already taken. In September 1982, additional students will be admitted into the second and third years up to the quota level.

Program admission criteria include a minimum 5.5 grade point average on University level work, a written statement concerning career objectives, two letters of reference focussing on character and suitability for such employment and an outline of criminal justice employment and experience. Application for admission to the BA (Special) in Criminology should be made to the Registrar, with supporting material forwarded directly to the Department of Sociology, Criminology Program Director. Students wishing to apply for admission should seek Departmental advice concerning course selection.

The program is an innovative and exciting one with great promise for future growth. Further information may be obtained by contacting the Department of Sociology, Criminology Program Director, Robert Silverman at 432-5234. □

Isobel Dempster, 1916-1981

Isobel Dempster died suddenly on 18 August 1981 just four months before she was due to retire. Mrs. Dempster worked for the Extension Library for fifteen years assisting with circulation procedures, book processing, and collecting books to send to the library's readers. She was a conscientious and willing worker who served the library and its patrons well. Her warm personality and quiet humor will be sorely missed by us all. □

Faculty of Education and Edmonton Public School District Personnel Exchange Program

The Faculty of Education is in its third year of a successful staff exchange with the Edmonton Public School District for the two-fold purpose of program enrichment and staff development. The terms of the exchange are that each person involved continues receiving the salary and benefits normally provided by the employer, and undertakes a normal workload in the other organization. Thus, no additional costs are involved. The nature of the assignment is related to the needs of the school district and is tailored to the staff members' interests and talents.

The following staff exchange arrangements have been made for the 1981-82 school year from The University of Alberta to the Edmonton Public School District:

Warren D. Wilde, Professor, Department of Elementary Education, from 1 September 1981 to 30 June 1982. Dr. Wilde will work with selected junior and senior high schools in the development of reading programs.

Derek W.R. Wilson, Professor, Department of Elementary Education, from 1 January 1982 to 30 June 1982. Dr. Wilson will work closely with interested schools and selected teachers in using thinking training techniques directly in the classroom.

The staff to be exchanged from the Edmonton Public School District to The University of Alberta are the following:

Eleanor Bidwell, Reading Specialist, from 1 January 1982 to 30 April 1982. Mrs. Bidwell will teach curriculum and instructional courses in Early Childhood Education and supervise student teachers in the Department of Elementary Education.

A Christening

A unique "christening ceremony" took place on campus yesterday, 2 September, according to an invitation received by the Office of Community Relations last week. The infant, now nine years old, has been called many names during her brief life, but is now to be known as the HUB Mall.

Little HUB, whose parents were the Students' Union and the architects A.J. Diamond and Barton Myers (assisted in their fatherly duties by R.L. Wilkin), is quite a cheerful child. Born with very few defects, none really debilitating, the child has been afflicted by various adversities during her tender years. Although the parents were respectable—solid conservative, middle class background—and were properly married, the family soon suffered from financial difficulties. To be fair, the father architects were not expected to pay for the upkeep of the child and they still maintain a care for their offspring and her home. The mother, SU, on the other hand, could not properly provide for the child, with the result that papers were drawn up and HUB was adopted by a single parent with many children, Alma Mater.

Mrs. Mater is not a single parent in the truest sense of the word; her husband, Albert, continues to supply support payments on an annual basis and no divorce is envisaged. Albert, however, maintains a costly residence on the other side of the river and is, therefore, quite strict about such things as money for housekeeping. Indeed, very few of Alma's children are allowed cosmetics and some are even clad in clothes that are constantly coming apart. Little HUB herself was recently brought to the attention of the health authorities for her unkempt appearance. Her mom was ordered to clean her up and not to be so negligent in the future.

Despite all her problems, Alma Mater struggles on caring for her family as best she can. HUB's natural mother, SU, was never known to have a good head for figures and still suffers financial problems to the extent that she may have to declare personal bankruptcy unless long-suffering Alma comes to her aid.

Little HUB is now a healthy, robust child. Even the effects of her accident in May 1973—she was almost run over by a garbage truck—are no longer evident. We wish her well for the future and hope we'll be invited to her eighteenth birthday. □
